THE SILENT EPIDEMIC: ESTRANGEMENT FROM FAMILY MEMBERS

Course Leader: Tina Gilbertson

TUES, 4/17, 9:30-11 am, Lecture, practical tools

About one in five people has someone in the family they're not talking to. For those over 50, perhaps the most painful silence is when an adult child intentionally creates distance. Parents who are rejected or ignored by their adult children may feel like they're the only ones with this painful problem. Research-based information and practical tips will be presented. Find out what causes estrangement, what to do about it, and how to support friends and relatives who may find themselves estranged from one or more adult children.

Tina Gilbertson is a Denver-based psychotherapist specializing in family estrangement. Tina has been featured as an expert in communication and relationships by the Washington Post, The Chicago Tribune, Redbook, and hundreds of other media outlets. She maintains a blog on PsychologyToday.com.
